By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—The prediction that "if Hitler's power is not destroyed, all Jews under his domination would be condemned to slow death," is made by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent, in a new book just published by Reynaul & Hitchcock under the title "Is Tomorrow Hitler's?"

Why slow? Why doesn't Hitler kill them all at once? Because, Mr. Knickerbocker explains, "he enjoys watching them suffer, has a sadistic pleasure in it; because he needs their labor power for the menial tasks to which he assigns them; and because he probably feels that until he conquers the whole world it would be wiser not to outrage what there is left of world opinion."

"Besides, Hitler finds the Jews useful wherever he wishes to divide a conquered population, as in France where the hostages he shoots are for the most part called Jews or Communists. Every time he shoots a Jewish hostage he says to the non-Jews, 'You see, if it were not for your Jews, you and I could get along perfectly together.' By this device of making the Jews the scapegoat, he works to arouse anti-Semitism among the vanquished and anti-Semitism in any form anywhere is the most faithful handmaid of Hitlerism."

Believes Million Polish Jews Killed

"Nobody knows how many of the Polish Jews have died; their fate is only more dreadful than that inflicted upon the entire Polish population. Sober observers believe that twenty per cent of the Polish population as a whole have been killed or have died as a result of the two years of German and Russian occupation. If this is true, then of the 6,000,000 dead, one must reckon that at least 1,000,000 are Jews. Whether this figure is too high or too low, the obvious intent of the Germans in Poland is to wipe out the Jews altogether, and the wonder is that any at all are living today."

"There seems to be no alternative for the Jews except that they suffer death at the hands of Hitlerism, or that Hitlerism be destroyed. It can be destroyed better with the outspoken, avowed help of the Jews of the world, and especially the Jews of America."

"It is shocking, indeed, to observe the names of a few Jews on the isolationist committees, and one wonders what mental processes have brought them there. Do they imagine that if America remains aloof and Hitler wins the rest of the world, that the Jews, or any other American, will be safe? No, if Hitler wins the rest of the world, the Lindberghs of America will boldly put their anti-Semitism to work, and the fate of the Jews in America will approximate that of their brothers abroad. There is no choice for the Jews of America but to put all the strength of their bodies and souls and purses to work the universal scourge. The anti-Semite is a friend of Hitler. The friend of Hitler is the enemy of the United States," Mr. Knickerbocker declares.

Says Pro-Nazis Turn Into Anti-Semites

Answering the question "Why did Lindbergh attack the Jews?" Mr. Knickerbocker writes: "Because anti-Semitism is an integral part of Hitlerism. If you are not against Hitler you are for him, and if you are for Hitler you will be compelled, sooner or later, and whether you intend it or not, to become anti-Semite. It was easy to read Lindbergh's anti-Semitism between the lines of his reference to the 'foreign' influences at work in America. He waited only until he thought the time ripe for his public announcement, but the results proved his calculation wrong. His statement against the Jews brought a roar of repudiation from all creeds and classes of the nation, and the only approval came from the group around Lindbergh who constitute what might be called the America First's Quisling Committee. Lindbergh's anti-Semitism could be sufficiently explained on the ground of temperament. He admires, he understands, and loves only machines and he could hardly be expected to understand or appreciate, much less approve, the spiritual values which for thousands of years have upheld the Jews through adversities which would have annihilated scores of more numerous but less faithful communities."

D. A. V. Flays Lindbergh

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW BRITAIN, Conn.—A resolution of the executive committee of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War this week condemned Charles A. Lindbergh for "un-American statements tending to castigate patriotic minorities of our great American democracy."

The nominating and planning Junior Hadassah's annual committee of the T.Y.P.L. will membership dance will be held hold a special meeting Friday, Saturday evening, Nov. 15, at the Nov. 7, at the Temple 10th and Antlers Hotel. A well known orchestra has been engaged. All paid members and their escorts are urged to attend.

Wheeler Denies Prejudice Again

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK — Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, isolationist leader and spokesman for the America First Committee, this week declared his abhorrence of anti-Semitism but expressed his belief that Charles A. Lindbergh is not an anti-Semite, it was revealed by L. M. Birkhead, national director of Friends of Democracy, who asked the Senator if he shared "Lindbergh's anti-Semitic views."

In a telegram to Birkhead, Senator Wheeler said: "I abhor anti-Semitism. I do not believe Lindbergh is anti-Semitic. I think you and your group by charging him as being anti-Semitic are doing more to stir up anti-Semitism in this country than of the anti-Semites in the country put together. You and some of the self-appointed leaders of the Jewish people are doing the Jewish race in this country a distinct disservice."

LOEW'S ATTRACTION

Four stars scatter sparks of meteoric laughter through this quadruple-angled comedy-romance opening Friday at Loew's.

Rosalind Russell, Don Ameche, Kay Francis and Van Heflin, pool their powers, but never pull their punches, as confused romancers in "The Feminine Touch."

The plot is based on Ameche's conviction that jealousy is simple, stupid and unnecessary, but his wife, Miss Russell, proves that it is complicated, demands brains and is unavoidable in love. The story opens in a freshwater college, advancing to the hobo-hemian atmosphere of literary Greenwich Village studio parties and the glitter of Park Avenue. The gowns worn by Rosalind Russell and Kay Francis were designed by Adrian and they'll set the feminine fashions for the 1941-42 season. Sophistication is lampooned all the way through the story, which affords some of the most scintillating dialogue ever heard on the screen.

Wanderers May Find Haven in Paraguay

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BUENOS AIRES—Active intervention on the part of the J. D. C. resulted this week in an announcement that the Government of Paraguay is willing to admit some 100 German-Jewish refugees who are threatened with deportation from Argentina by Nov. 12, after having wandered for about ten months after leaving France, without being admitted anywhere. However, it is reported that the Argentine Government refuses to grant transit visas to the refugees.

One group of 35 refugees arrived in Argentina about a fortnight ago on the Spanish freighter Cabo Buena Esperanza. They had left France last January for Brazil but have been imprisoned at Dakar for five months in a concentration camp. During these five months their visas had expired and Brazil subsequently refused to admit them. They were permitted to land in Argentina, but acting President Ramon Castillo ordered them deported and set Nov. 12 as the deportation date. Another group of 65 Jewish refugees, similarly imprisoned at Dakar, reached the Argentine shores last week and faced a similar fate.

Seattle, Washington.

Puget sound has 30 times the shore-line it really needs. In other words, its 8,000 square miles of surface is enclosed by a meandering, tortuous coast that could encircle 250,000 square miles of water, if straightened out. The Sound's complicated maze of inlets, bays and passages make excellent harbors, but would be an awful headache to local residents if they had to use roads and highways to get around. Long ago ferry boats came to the rescue and are now a vital necessity to this district.

Branching out in every direction from Seattle are dozens of lanes plied daily, rain or shine or fog by a fleet of sixty ferries, ranging in size and appearance from the sleek, silvery "Kalakala," the first streamlined ferry boat in the world and able to transport 85 automobiles and their passengers at a time, down to stubby little tubs that chug alone the shorter runs, groaning under a load of six or eight cars. All of them, large or small, play an important part in the moving of 5,000,000 passengers and 1,000,000 automobiles annually.

Although lumber mills, fish canneries and a large aircraft factory of note keep things humming here in Seattle, this city couldn't get along very well without the ferry service that daily shuttles workers and supplies to and fro. As an example, it is a four hour drive along a 130 mile road from Seattle, which is about the cleanest, freshly scrubbed city I ever saw, over to the bustling Navy Yard at Bremerton, but you can make the trip in fifty minutes, via ferry. Of course, if you're in an awful hurry, you can get over there in three or four minutes by the regular plane ferry, but they haven't yet figured a way for you to take your car along with you.

The weather is fine around here now, in what is termed the Evergreen Playground, but they get their share of fog and drizzle every year. It is during such periods of murkiness that the best is brought out in ferry boat skippers and pilots. Then, unable to see more than a few feet ahead of their bows, they actually rely on their ears to get safely through the narrow inlets and passages of the Sound, which, in more than one case, are less than a thousand feet across. That, even in clear weather and with tides dragging you about is a very cramped space to navigate, but in a thick fog such a narrow channel gives a layman the chills. I made a number of runs a few years ago, marveling at the way the skipper blew his whistle and then listened for its echo, counting seconds to determine the distance of the shore that was throwing the loud toots back. An echo that comes back in one second indicates that land is but 500 feet away.

Nowadays the broader, main steamer lanes of Puget Sound are well lighted and marked, but back in the distant reaches of the wandering channels a hardy breed of seamen still steer by ear when the fog settles down. And, no matter how thick that fog may be, those men have never let it stop or delay the runs of their boats.

3 Are Nominated For Federation Election Monday

With an election assured as a result of the nomination of three persons from the community, expectations for a capacity crowd were voiced this week for the joint annual meeting of the Jewish Federation and the Welfare Fund set for 8 p.m. this Monday, at Kirshbaum Center. The three nominees, all for the Federation board, are Dr. Ebner Blatt, Dr. Leon Levi and Leo Selig. They will compete with Dr. Sidney Aronson, Robert A. Efromson, Ernest Cohn, Dr. Philip Falender, Sol Goldsmith, Leo Kaminsky and Samuel Miller, who were named by the nominating committee for 3-year terms.

No contest will be made for the board of directors of The welfare fund, since by Wednesday, last days in which petitions could be presented, no names had been put up.

The voting will be by written ballot, it was said.

Following election of directors to the boards of both organizations and a brief report by H. Joseph Hyman, executive director, the audience will be introduced to the chairman of the 1942 Jewish Welfare Fund campaign. The presentation will be made by William L. Schloss, chairman of the last drive.

With the business of the meeting over as quickly as possible, the audience will be treated to two films. The first, "A Day at Big Eagle Camp" is a typical day of activities at the camp and the second, in technicolor and sound, is a "Tale of Two Worlds", a gripping, authentic story of Jewish life throughout Europe, the Far East and South America.

A social hour with refreshments will follow. Samuel Mueller, president of the Jewish Welfare Fund will preside. The meeting is open to the public but only contributors to either the Community Fund or Jewish Welfare Fund may vote.

AL SEGAL Speaks On Death of a Rabbi

A great many of us in our town were made poignantly aware of our impermanence one evening the other week, and felt very humble. Those who were too proud felt reduced to the measure of the dust from which they came, the arrogant were let down.

We had just heard of the death of one of the finer mortals among us. Only a few hours before he had spoken to us. We had thought what a vibrant person this is. It was as if we had seen a man laid low before our eyes.

It hadn't been like death as most of us know it. Death after long illness. Death in old age. One can understand death after long illness and death in old age. After a long life death may come even as a good friend. This was death striking in a moment of eager life.

We were assembled in the dazzling glitter of the Hall of Mirrors in one of our hotels for a United Jewish Appeal dinner. Some thousand of us. The long line of gleaming shirt fronts at the speakers' table. The gay chatter of gossip around the tables. Funny stories.

Then, of a sudden, the news came whispering from table to table. It edged around the circle of effulgent mirrors. It was like some icy wind scampering among the tables.

"You've heard the terrible news, haven't you? About Rabbi Israel. . . .?"

Rabbi Israel? Not Why, many of us had spoken to him the night before, had heard his eloquence, had seen his bright hopes. He had stood in this same hotel addressing us, giving a tribute to Rabbi Zopin whom he was succeeding as executive director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. It was Rabbi Zopin's testimonial.

Yes, we had laughed with him. His story about the Negro porter who had become a deacon in his church. Rabbi Israel himself had had a farewell testimonial from his congregation in Baltimore just a week before.

"I was buried last Sunday," he had laughed. He thought of testimonial dinners being like funerals, with all the tributes. "But I enjoyed it," he added. "It was very pleasant."

He had given our eyes a gleam of bright, new world that was to be built after all this. The ideals of religion would be in this structure holding it fast together. Lights of religion illuminating it. Judaism must take hold of its torches, too, and carry them against the darkness.

His eyes were bright with the vision. Some (Continued on Page 8)

Pilam Pledges Dance Tomorrow Night

Special BLOOMINGTON — Gaiety and dancing will hold forth in the big white house on fraternity row tomorrow night, when over a hundred couples will swing and sway to the tunes of Bob Barne's popular campus orchestra as Pi Lambda Phi extends its formal welcome to the pledge class. One of the highlights of the evening will be the distribution of the Alpha Theta Tattle, a paper published at each pledge and initiation dance by the pledges.

It is only fitting that the pledges should be honored tonight as last Saturday they won a hard fought and highly cherished victory from the pledges of S.A.M. A large crowd was on hand in the I. U. fieldhouse to see an inspired group of Pilam pledges overwhelm the highly touted Sammy pledges with a brilliant running and passing attack.

High scholastic honors were brought to Pi Lambda Phi this week by Brothers Nate Miller and Gerstein Rappaport. Brother Rappaport was awarded the Burnet Scholarship, one of the highest honors an undergraduate may achieve at I. U. Brother Miller, vice-president, and first alto-sax player in Max Greer's band, has been pledged to Alpha Kappa Delta national honorary sociological fraternity, the highest honor that a sociology student may achieve.

Guests last week were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Weinstein, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Goldman and son Louis, all of Indianapolis.

Sammies Win Two, Near Third League Title

BLOOMINGTON (spl)—As in days past, once more S.A.M. rises up with another powerful intramural machine. We are pointing to a big year and have got off to a flying start with two league victories and a third in prospect.

The football squad won its league trophy last Monday with an 18-0 victory over last year's finalists, Sigma Nu. Sparked by the accurate passing of Leon "Roey" Rosenberg, Ben "Denks" Richter and Mary "Lover" Sablosky, the Purple Powerhouse amassed 73 points to the opposition's 18. A hard-charging line bulwarked by Sylvan Baer, Slim Sam Levy, Sherm Weinstein and the Frommer boys, Jud and Larry kept the Sammies running.

Our big, genial pledge from Louisville, Bob Linker, led the natators to their league triumph as he splashed his way to victory in the free-style event throughout the season and also anchored the victorious relay squad.

The volleyball team has been doing its part in the championship drive. After drubbing Phi Kappa Psi, they rolled over South Hall, winning each game by a large margin. Members of the squad are Slim Sam Levy, Whitney Greenberg, Jud Frommer, Bob Raphael, Mary Vigran and Bob Linker.

Welcome guests this last week were Fra Tete Dann of Indianapolis, Sigma Zeta's alumnus members of the Octagon, S.A.M.'s National Governing Board, Fra Mike Glassner and Fra Herb Backer, both of Indianapolis. Another welcome visitor this week-end is Fra Jimmy Hammerstein, our national executive traveling secretary, who is making the rounds of Sigma Alpha Mu's 37 chapters.

The chapter is looking forward to the big event of the year, the annual pledge formal dance, which will be held on Saturday, Dec. 6, in the chapter house. The following Sunday, the pledges will be honored with a banquet in the Graham Hotel, at which time the famous chapter glee club will perform once again.

HALLOWEEN

H'ants and ghosts were all afloat Friday evening. It was indeed a be "witching" evening. At the Butler Halloween dance very mildly celebrating the occasion by dancing, guzzling cider, and watching a few brave students in costume were Benny Nahmias, Freda Cohn, Charlotte Blieden, Sammy Chernin, Harold Wild, Carl Price and Moe Levy. In the basement of the Lillie Mae Smith residence later Al Rosenberg, Red Kane and Ed Rose gave their priceless interpretation of the Floradora Girls, an improvement over the originals, actually. "Talented" Al demonstrated a thorough cave man technique with the aid of his date Mimi Bluestein. Gathered in a game of "twenty guesses, you guess him," were Lillie Mae, Izzy Dock, Phil Smith, Selma Cooper, Adele Gold, Gabe Schuchman, and several others. And at a party given in honor of Miss Virginia Nichols, new in town, were frolickers Ethel Kaplan, Joan Weiss, Dave Tavel, Bernice Kaseff (quite handsome in his uniform), Annette Herman, etc., etc.

SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon in the Riley Room at Block's lunching, laughing, and loitering were seen Lil Klezmer, Evelyn Lob, Shirley Einbinder, and Mrs. Betty Maurer. In the evening coming out of "the Little Foxes" with satisfied expressions on their faces were Martin Prince, Barbara Lee Wolf, Dave Fogel, Libby Maurer, Seymour and Ginger Pinkus. At the Variety Club watching the antics of members of the Sonja Henie Ice Show, gathered Norm Weisman, Annette Simon, Bob Schwab, Marilyn Koffman and Bob Cooper, among many others.

RECEPTION

"Two tired people" at the end of the day were Milt Fox and Marion Goldsmith who had spent the entire afternoon shaking hands and receiving endless congratulations from well-wishing friends who thronged the Columbia Club where the reception was held. Thelma Levy and her fiancé Dave Ockstein were around, also Lil Kamlot, Walt Sicanoff, Lee Engle, "Bo" Wasserman of Louisville and her sister Lillie Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sicanoff, the Goldsmith's en masse naturally, are a few of the well-wishers. Also, Mendel Piser, Alberta Shalansky, Sherman Weinstein, Jean Jaffe and fiancé, Phyllis Levy, Sylvia Fox and fiancé, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Wides, Mrs. M. Maurer.

THE GRAPEVINE

Here's the I. U. situation as whispered to me about the north end of the campus. A well known S. A. M. has (or will soon have) his fraternity pin again residing where it should instead of on the attractive redhead. The redhead has suddenly become interested in "art" as a hobby. Mary Sablosky's discovery (in the Harris Grand balcony) Kathleen, better known as the "Sweetheart of Sigma Alpha Mu" will have to be replaced; I wonder who her successor will be? The two little but mighty members of the campus have at last "discovered" each other, result: going steady. They are Betty Savesky and Bob Ganzer. "Out of sight, out of mind" is proved by Bob Linker's dating Peggy Bobele so frequently — the forgotten woman being his home town (Louisville) girl. Having seen Peggy we can understand, however. Donald Dann had his date for the year with an Alpha Chi, and something tells us that he will be seeing much more of her, if possible, for the silent Donald has fallen — and bad! Dick Black insists that it isn't real, but evidence is against him, for Dick long-distances his pinned girl friend in Florida every week. Or does he just enjoy the thrill of paying those rates— Wilson Gittleman and Lennie Pryweller show a weakness for "Kaplans"—Thelma and Ruth respectively. Phil Trockman is a decided asset to the S. A. M. house in that he has such attractive relatives (feminine) to entertain his frat brothers. There's sister Shirley for Whitney Greenberg and his cousin for Marvin Sablosky. Lou Finkle (still brightening at the name Jean) gets the jitters whenever he sees braid and gold buttons, for he is going into the Navy in January. Unanimous choice for "sweater girl" is Shirley Fine. "Artie" of Ohio State passed his pin on to Alta Ziegler of Muncie. Miriam Sicanoff likes Indiana very well, but you see her at her best on her way to Chicago. There's a very good reason. A very interesting chart for display would be the one kept by the Pi Lam pledges which shows each and every date of each boy, when and where. No chance of their forgetting.

FUNNY

Funniest sight of the week was Harriet Tamler and date Harold Newman wriggling under the pole at the Sapphire Room Monday evening, but it was worth the bottle of champagne offered as a prize. Their party urged them on to victory, said party being composed of Hattie Wides and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wides, Leo and Louise Cohn, Babe Newman, of Birmingham, Ala., Evelyn Lob, Ruth and Lou Silvers, Fran Freeman and Lennie Mandell of Birmingham.

Franked by His Ghost?

Although Senator Ernest Lundeen, Minnesota isolationist, has been dead more than a year, his signature on this franked envelope allowed it to be mailed free-of-charge in New York last week. The envelope contained a pro-appeasement speech by the late Senator and postcards now being distributed by a pro-Nazi and anti-semitic group of followers of Charles A. Lindbergh. The Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, which uncovered this latest abuse of the franking privilege, has protested to the Post Office Department. Remedial action by Congress to stop continued franking abuses by appeasement and pro-Nazi propagandists is also being urged by the Anti-Nazi League.

Plans for a Thanksgiving cabaret and dance and a New Year eve celebration were discussed.

Dessert With A Double Purpose

PLEASE a hungry husband and small children with one and the same dessert? That's just what this new recipe for Meringue with Chocolate Custard is intended to do. The flavor is sweet enough to satisfy a mature taste in desserts, and yet the consistency of the custard is thin and delicate enough to be popular with children. It is a recipe that children will ask you to make over and over again, since each serving consists of a snowy peak of meringue surrounded by a chocolate custard lake.

The chocolate custard base, and all stirred custards, are especially easy to prepare on the surface units of a modern electric range, because they can be made in a saucepan over direct heat, just as can gravies and white sauce. If you choose to use one of the low controlled heats of the electric range and resist the temptation to turn to a higher heat, you have the same protection against curdling and scorching that a double boiler provides. And more than that, each time you make custard you can choose to use this same heat and expect the same creamy, smooth product. And rightly so, because there is no guesswork about heat in electric cookery. It is a measured ingredient in every recipe, just as are the sugar, eggs or flour.

The recipe below gives the direct making this Meringue with Chocolate Custard without a double boiler, using a low heat on an electric surface unit:

Meringue with Chocolate Custard (Serves 5)

1 square unsweetened chocolate (1 ounce)
1½ cups milk
2 egg yolks, beaten slightly
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon vanilla

Place chocolate and milk in a saucepan on surface unit of electric range over a low heat. Heat until chocolate is melted and milk is scalded (about 10 minutes). Then beat with a rotary egg beater to blend thoroughly. Meanwhile, place egg yolks in a small mixing bowl; add 3 tablespoons of the sugar, together with the salt. Combine, using a spoon for the mixing process. Add a little of the warm milk to this mixture, then pour it all slowly into the remainder of the milk and continue to cook over low heat until custard coats the spoon (about 12 minutes). Remove from surface unit and add ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Chill in refrigerator. Just before serving time, beat egg whites until frothy and add ¼ teaspoon of vanilla. Then add the remaining sugar gradually and continue to beat until the whites will stand in stiff peaks. The meringue into dessert dishes and chocolate custard over and around each serving.

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR,

Remember the "chair" in which I wrote about the incident at Wheeler's Restaurant where two fellows next to me were discussing the Chicago Tribune and the havoc and destruction Jews were visiting on America. Well, the other morning one of these "defenders of democracy" got on the elevator, with me in our Meridian Life Building, and sure enough he had his copy of "The Tribune" in his hand. Seeing me, he showed the cartoon on the front page to the colored elevator operator and proceeded to call out several times for my edification that the "kikes" were ruining the country.

I am not usually a violent man, although I have had my moments, but I tell you that I could hardly restrain myself, principally because I wasn't particularly eager to do any restraining. The fellow is bigger than me, but who isn't; and it was because he was about fifty years old and wore glasses that I held back. Still I almost did kick him.

But what I wanted to tell you was this. I asked the elevator operator later who the fellow was, and of all things he's the head of the Kirkbride Bible Company, and really does a thriving business selling Bibles throughout the country through mail order agents.

I am not at liberty to tell you who will be named head of the Jewish Welfare Fund drive for next year. You'll learn his name at the annual meeting Monday, and maybe before if you're smart. But I can say this, he'll be a good man.

The Menorah Players, the only other Jewish dramatic group in Indiana than The Prefenders, presented "Margin for Error" in South Bend last week. The Menorah Players would like to visit Indianapolis and produce, as they have done for many Jewish groups in their home city, one of their programs for a benefit sponsored by one of the leading Jewish organizations in the city. They are more than happy to give their services free for a charitable cause, and certainly the offer should be snapped up by one of the local organizations.

Personally I think The Prefenders ought to invite the Menorah Players to present a performance here, and in return be invited to South Bend to perform there. The exchange should be

May Get Kicked Out of School

THE way American Jewry has sidestepped the issue of Jewish aid and encouragement to the Soviet is marvelous to behold. And the present position is rapidly becoming untenable, in view of the immediate and affirmative response of English and Palestinian Jewry.

Of course The American Jewish Congress, which has been right thus far on every issue involving Hitler since his party's rise to power, responded even before aid was requested.

But other Jewish organizations and groups, including the Anglo-Jewish Press, and including The Jewish Post, have shut up like a clam.

Burned once when the Soviet deserted the Allies for Mr. Hitler, and by fascistic tendencies preceding that overt act, Jewish lay leaders and organizations are having none of the Soviet, and there you are, which may be all right, but telling the teacher you don't know will sooner or later result in your being demoted or kicked out of school when promotion day comes around.

Nothing to Be Expected From Here

FOLLOWING UP a "canned" editorial it sent out urging the Council of Jewish Welfare Funds and Federations to assert its manhood and bring "moral" pressure on the "Big Four" to reunite into a "functional" agency to speak and act for U. S. Jewry, the Independent Jewish Press Service is circularizing Federation and Welfare fund executives for their views on the matter.

The editorial, which has been used by quite a few papers who buy the news service's releases ends:

"If every Welfare Fund in the country and every Jewish Community Council, and the Council of Jewish Federations, were to say immediately, unequivocally and vigorously: 'We want united action to meet a common problem regardless of what vested interests think,' it will mark the most important—and perhaps the only one needed—step toward ending the chaos, the confusion and complete futility of what passes for civic protection in America today."

The editorial carries great validity but it is addressed to a feeble organization, and one whose destiny has passed it by. Readers will recall that although the Council of Jewish Welof us hadn't made much of religion. Being Jewish had had to do with a lot of extra-mural things—Jew—social service and other secular causes like "Jewish art," things like that. He had handed us a brave light of Jewish faith to carry in the darkness.

He had looked so strong as he stood here. The handsome head on broad shoulders. Boyish almost. He was only 45. His mother was there, very proud.

"Yes, Rabbi Israel was dead," the whisper went around the tables. Died suddenly. Was giving a talk when he fell over dead. He to die! In the midst of his work. To die at the beginning of another career. And still a young man.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel had died in one of the board rooms around the corner from this banquet hall three hours ago. It was a meeting of the executive board of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He was taking over his new work as director of the Union. "This is close to my heart," he was saying about some cause of Jewish life, and fell forward over the table and was dead.

There wasn't much appetite for the feast after that. The chicken, the salad, the ice cream of the menu had come to look like the least of things to live by. The gay mirrors had become mocking symbols and men felt ill at ease in this splendor.

They remembered the philosophical essay that is read in our temples at the memorial services on Yom Kippur. It asks, What is man? And what does he live for? He has his brief day of pain and struggle, of striving hope and achievement, and then it's all over and he goes back to the dust after the brief stay.

The question went around the tables: What's it all about? Men suddenly had become aware that living must mean more than buying and fare Funds and Federations was instrumental in forcing the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, the B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee to unite into the General Jewish Council in 1938, it was outside leadership, in the person of Edgar J. Kaufman, of Pittsburgh who maneuvered some 21 constituent bodies of the welfare fund and federation group into demanding unity. The welfare fund and federation group has never done anything in respect to "unity" on its own part, except talk.

The situation in respect to the welfare funds is that they are a desexed and leaderless organization. Anyone who has listened to the bitter diatribes and fiery denunciations of the Big Four at any regional or national council meeting, would have been astounded at the puny motions which the mountain finally gave forth.

But destiny has passed the councils and welfare funds by, and unity now is possible in American Jewry only on a federal basis, with the very vocal and the very courageous national religious groups, the "Big Four", national organizations like Hadassah, and the council of Jewish Welfare Funds and Federations, all joined together in a truly national organization endowed with "POWER" to act.

selling, real estate deals, night clubs and casinos. When time was so short and uncertain it looked silly to be spending all of it that way. It was as if you were told you had an hour to live and you used it all trying to make a sale, and then you died and with your last breath said, "Well, anyway, I made that sale."

It was dying without having lived at all. Time was short and who in this banquet hall was going to be called next? The guests looked around: Which of us? We were all ear-marked, and it was only a question of the hour. It was time to begin to live and put some meaning into this existence. Time was running away, and when would we begin to live. Tomorrow we would have to start all over again the dreary round of our existence. There seemed to be no time to live.

This rabbi had lived even to his last moment, had died holding an ideal fast to his heart. He was speaking of that at the moment. "This is close to my heart." He had lived his few days gallantly. He had carried the brave banner. Had been compassionate; the slum child was his brother whom he must serve. Had marched far ahead summoning the brotherhood of man. Of being Jewish he had made a good way of life; it had brought him to the mountain top and he was not afraid.

After all his death wasn't as sad as that of those who die without having lived. In his brief time he has fulfilled. His death was his last sermon—the masterpiece of all his many sermons. It had left men deeply thinking about themselves: What am I? And what for? And when can I begin to live? Time's so short and uncertain.

We dispersed. A gentleman said, well, there's nothing to our lives anyway. There are our children. We're trying to make them better people than ourselves. Most of this miserable little striving is on their account. Isn't that so? That's something. Something to our credit. But are we succeeding? Are we making their lives better or only softer? he asked.

an incentive to both groups, and definitely the move would serve to arouse interests in dramatics in both communities.

Because so much of Jewish life in our modern communities is taken up with meetings, The Post is thinking seriously of establishing a Speakers Bureau for the service of Jewish groups throughout Indiana. There would be no charge by any of the speakers, except travelling expenses, and The Post would endeavor to provide speakers who would be likely to be of interest to particular groups, and not, as often has been done, schedule a "heavy" speaker for what would be a fun-loving group, and vice versa. In addition The Post would offer programs other than speakers, such as quizzes, or panel discussions or performances by the Hillel Foundation, or dramatic groups, and so on. The undertaking would be quite ambitious, but it should serve a real need in the state. An announcement may be forthcoming to the above effect, probably right after the first of the year.

Alfred Segal, he of "Plain Talk" fame, must surely be a lover of children, as witness the innumerable (adjective used advisedly) columns he has written about his granddaughter, Ellen. So that we dedicate this paragraph to him, in the hope that his companionship with Ellen will have given him the knowledge to answer a question. As I get ready to leave the house of a morning, my young son, calls out, "Daddy," and I answer, "Yes, Larry," and he inquires invariably, "Where are you going, daddy?" To which I reply, "Daddy's going to work." And then comes the stumper: "WHY?" he propounds. Readers of this paper want to know the answer to the same question.

Noticing the remark in last week's "Chair" about the discussion at a Friday night service in Evansville of one of the articles in the New Year issue of The Post, Jack Finklestein, who has done such an excellent job as head of the Fort Wayne Jewish Federation, told me that at Yom Kippur services, Rabbi Doppelt devoted his entire sermon to the article in the same issue, announcing that he had prepared his sermon at great length during the summer holiday, but was changing it in view of the immediacy of the articles in our paper.
